RSVP, Inc. is a 501c3, nonprofit animal rescue group serving Eastern Long Island, New York since Jan 6, 1996. Originally founded as the "Riverhead Shelter Volunteer Program" their goal was to improve conditions at the Riverhead municipal shelter and reduce the needless suffering of companion animals. Realizing to make a significant difference, they needed to focus on the source of the problem and encourage responsible pet care and sterilization in the low income neighbourhoods where most of the animals were originating. Determined, these ladies drove their van into targeted areas, which consistently produced high numbers of abused, neglected, un-neutered and/or unwanted pets that ultimately landed at the Riverhead facility. Many rescue organizations will offer spay/neuter programs, very few will actively seek out those who will not ask for help, although they need it most. RSVP is the only rescue group on the east end of Long Island offering this unique and vital service.
